THE AMERICAN FLAG

Joseph Rodman Drake; 1793-1820.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of night,
And set the Stars of glory there.
She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
The milky baldric of the skies,
And striped its pure celestial white
With streakings of the morning light;
Then from his mansion in the sun
She called her Eagle-bearer down,
And gave into his mighty hand
The symbol of her chosen land.

Majestic Monarch of the cloud,
Who rear'st aloft thy regal form,
To hear the tempest-trumpets tone,
And see the lightning-lances driven,
When stride the warriors of the storm,
And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven;
Child of the Sun! to thee 'tis given
To guard the banner of the free,
To hover in the sulphur-smoke,
To ward away the battle-stroke,
And bid its blending shine afar,
Like rainbows on the cloud of war,
The harbingers of victory!

Flag of the brave! thy folds shall fly,
The sign of hope and triumph high!
When speaks the signal-trumpet tone,
And the long line comes gleaming on—
Ere yet the life-blood, warm and wet,
Has dimmed the glistening bayonet—
Each soldier eye shall brightly turn
To where thy sky-born glories burn;
And as his springing steps advance,
Catch war and vengeance from the glance,
And when the cannon-mouthings loud
Heave in wild wreaths the battle-shroud,
And gory sabers rise and fall
Like shoots of flame on midnight's pall—
There shall thy meteor-glances glow,
And cowering foes shall shrink beneath
Each gallant arm that strikes below
That lovely messenger of death.

Flag of the seas! on ocean wave
Thy Stars shall glitter o'er the brave:
When Death careering on the gale,
Sweeps darkly round the bellied sail,

And frightened waves rush wildly back
Before the broadside's reeling rack,
Each dying wanderer of the sea
Shall look at once to heaven and thee
And smile to see thy splendors fly
In triumph o'er his closing eye.

Flag of the free heart's hope and home!
By angel hands to valor given!
Thy Stars have lit the welkin dome,
And all thy hues were born in heaven.
Forever float that standard-sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

Mrs. Thomas Kidwell.

Mrs. Thomas E. Kidwell of Bard, after an illness of several months with tuberculosis, departed this life June 24, 1908. The deceased was a daughter of the late Theodore Kinton of Napier. She was born on August 12, 1867, and was 40 years, 10 months and 12 days old. She was married to Thomas Kidwell on August 30, 1887. To this union were born the following children: Oscar G. Robert, Walter, Thomas Raymond, Maud Pearl and Margaret Claire, all of whom were present when the end came except Oscar, who being in California, was not able to arrive before death came, but was present for the funeral services.

Besides her children and husband who mourn her death, are her aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Kinton, her sisters, Mrs. Maud Carpenter, late of Bard, but at present of Youngstown, O.; Miss Ella Kinton, Rosamond, Cal.; Mrs. Tee Gibbs, Philadelphia; Mrs. Ida Williams, Schellsburg; and Miss Lenore Kinton at home. Two brothers, George of Lancaster, Cal. and Howard of Napier also survive.

Two brothers, George of Lancaster, Cal. and Howard of Napier also survive.

Mrs. Barbara Weimer.

Mrs. Barbara Weimer, aged 59 years, widow of William Weimer, a former Justice of the Peace, died at her home in Clearville of paralysis on Wednesday, July 1. She was a daughter of Baltzer Fleicher. The funeral will be held today. Obituary next week.

Miss Anna Akers.

Miss Anna Akers, a daughter of Abia Akers, died at her home near Mattie on Wednesday, July 1, of a complication of diseases. Last fall she underwent an operation in an Altoona Hospital and never fully recovered. Her father and a sister Sarah survive her.

Funeral services will be held in the Stevens Methodist church today, at which place interment will be made.

New Heating Plant.

The American Warming and Ventilating Company of Pittsburgh, to whom was given the contract for the new heating and ventilating plant in the schoolhouse, are at work. The old apparatus, which has done service for 20 years, has been removed and the building is being prepared for the new plant. The new plant will be a single fan mechanical system, which with the new closets, all complete, will cost $9,200.

ENGINEER PREDICTS EARLY COMPLETION OF TROLLEY LINE.

The building of a trolley line from Altoona to Bedford has for some years been considered feasible, and because of the rich agricultural region through which it would pass and the removal by the Legislature of the restriction on carrying freight it is now thought it would be a paying investment. The appearance in Altoona and along the proposed line of F. W. Patterson, a consulting engineer and John G. Burns of Pittsburgh, has started a current of talk and their favorable interview gives hope that the road may soon be built.

In reply to numerous questions, Mr. Patterson said:

"Mr. Burns and myself have no financial interest in the road, being here solely as representatives of Pittsburgh capitalists who have been interested in the project. Among the gentlemen who sent us here is a prominent contractor, who has had practical experience with electrical roads.

"Our responsibility ends with an investigation of the proposed route, the possibility of making the venture profitable and an ascertainment of difficulties that may be in the way of the operation. I may say, however, that the interests we represent will lay upon the report we make to guide them in their future action.

"I have no hesitancy in saying that my report to my employers shall be that the projected line, in my opinion, is a mighty good business proposition. I might say that it is unusually desirable.

"The line will tap a rich agricultural community, and a remarkable thing in its favor is that if it is completed it will traverse a section that is largely inhabited. Many rural lines run large sections through open country and are compelled to depend upon scattered settled communities for traffic. This will not be the case with this line. It ought to be highly profitable from passenger traffic, not to mention the possibilities for money-earning that exist in freight transportation.

"I would not be surprised if work starts immediately. Business conditions make this a propitious time for undertaking the operation. Materials are rather lower in price than they have been for some time, and the supply of labor enters into the equation. If the Pittsburgh gentlemen interested decide to complete the road, I feel certain in saying that no time will be lost in starting."

Marriage Licenses.

Edgar N. Diehl and Gussie M. Casteel, of Bedford township.

William Marshall Poor and Mary Ann Wolfe, both of Six Mile Run.

On Tuesday Judge Woods appointed a commission in lunacy, consisting of Dr. D. W. Davis and J. L. Tenley, Esq., of Six Mile Run, and Attorney George Points, to inquire into the alleged insanity of Nora Baker of Broad Top township. The committee met on Wednesday and after taking the testimony, reported her to be insane.

The Phillipsburg Ledger has the following to say about Miss Ruth Steiner who, with her parents, was a recent visitor in that city: "Little Miss Ruth is a musical prodigy of six years, whose piano playing is almost beyond credence for a child of her age and yet, what, she is a modest little girl, not at all the precocious child that one would naturally expect to find an infant genius."

W. S. Aaron and nine others, mostly employees of Mr. Aaron's Altoona furniture establishment, made up a merry auto party that spent Saturday night and part of Sunday in Bedford and at the Springs. In addition to Mr. Aaron the party consisted of Messrs. George London, S. S. Claycomb, E. L. Ott, H. E. Westbrook, I. G. Way, Roy Oellig, Chester Gwin, William Dean, Sheldon E. Aaron and Harry Replegle.

FAVORS HIGHWAY

Governor Stuart In Address Before the Pennsylvania

STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Points Out Advantages to the State of Great Thoroughfare from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh.

In his address last week before the Pennsylvania State Bar Association at Cape May, Governor Stuart made a strong plea for a state highway from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. After telling about the famous military highways hewn through the forests by Generals Forbes and Braddock, and about the construction of the Pennsylvania Canal which operated against the building of wagon roads, the Governor said:

"We have no occasion today to prophesy the passing of the steam railroad, but the good roads' era is in its dawn. Pennsylvania has inaugurated the beginning of a system of good roads for all counties to be built on the co-operative plan of payment. The State Highway Department has completed 340 miles of good roads and has in course of construction 350 additional miles.

"Pennsylvania's geographical position affords opportunity. It is both an Atlantic and Central State. It possesses at the seaboard a metropolis, the chief manufacturing city of the Union, and at its west portal the wonderful steel and iron district of Pittsburgh is located, places of unusual prosperity and wealth, whose influence in trade, manufactures and commerce is felt all over the world.

"The proposed highway across the State should be an avenue of common communication and transportation adapted to the period and the future. Its facilities should comprehend the pedestrian and equestrian and vehicles of all kinds. Since it is to be a trunk line for the people, laterals will naturally extend from it north and south.

"Rural mail delivery is an established fact, and the farmer would not be deprived of this service, now that he knows the benefits.

"Such a modern highway from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh would bring a continuous stream of tourists from the far East and West to the Pennsylvania territory and would tend to open many new avenues. It would promote activity in real estate and would be so long that private monopoly would be out of the question. Emigration would follow as would development and house building and improvement and use of idle land. Production of crops and stock raising would ensue. The usefulness and value of existing farms would be enhanced.

"In fact, individual county and State wealth would be augmented by the improvement. The markets of the Pennsylvania farmer are local. His business is co-dependent upon the general prosperity of the nearby town or city. Whatever makes for progress there is a factor to the farmer. Many industries are fitted for small towns and can be made profitable by good road transportation. These industries would be more generally distributed were proper inducements afforded.

"Consideration and benefits so obvious, varied and weighty, so comprehensive in usefulness, so impartial, fraternal and universal in disposition afford an opportunity without parallel in any other State to inaugurate a public improvement in the common good."

$100 AND GATE RECEIPTS

Prize in Everett-Coadale Game at Anderson Park July 8.

The game at Anderson Park on Wednesday of next week between Everett and Coal Dale on the local grounds will, beyond all question, be the most hotly contested of the season. It is for the championship of the county, and the winning team gets a purse of $100 and gate receipts.

It is expected that an excursion train will be run from Saxton which will bring many spectators. The largest crowd and the best game of the season are looked for. Don't fail to turn out.

Archibald Barnes.

Archibald Barnes, an aged citizen of Everett, died on Wednesday, July 1, aged 78 years, seven months and six days. He leaves the following children: Mrs. E. E. Bowch and John, of Everett; Mrs. Belle Fickles and Charles, of Wilkesburg; Mrs. S. K. Harwell of Altoona; Mrs. George Gibson of Roun City, Neb.; Mrs. Henry May of Hagerstown, Md.; P. B. of Coketown, W. Va., and Isaac C. of Johnstown; also a brother and sister.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. R. Van Pelt at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Tecumseh M. E. church. Interment in the Everett cemetery.

P. O. Schedule for Fourth.

THE NEW COMMANDMENT

"Let Go the Cross"—Gertrude Runshon.

I heard a strange voice in the distance calling
As from a star an echo might be falling.

It spake four syllables, concise and brief,
Charged with a God-sent message of relief:

Let go the Cross! Oh, you who cling to sorrow,
Hark to the new command and comfort borrow.

Even as the Master left His cross below
And rose to Paradise, let go, let go.

Forget your wrongs, your troubles and your losses,
For with the tools of thought we build our crosses.

Forget your griefs, all grudges and all fear
And enter Paradise—it's gates are near.

Heaven is a realm by loving souls created,
And hell was fashioned by the hearts that hated.

Love, hope and trust; believe all joys are yours.
Life pays the soul whose confidence endures.

The blows of adverse fate, by larger pleasures,
As after storms the soil yields fuller measures.

Let go the cross; roll self—the stone—away
And dwell with Love in Paradise to-day.

—By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Bedford Readers Know What it Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—Backache, sideache, headache, Early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Bedford citizen tells here a certain cure.

W. H. Weyant, living on W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills is not a new remedy with me as I have used them off and on for a number of years and would not be without them in the house. I am forced to do a great deal of work while standing on my feet and also some heavy lifting. This brought on my kidney trouble and backache. At such times I appeal to Doan's Kidney Pills and a few doses serve to banish the attacks. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. June 26-27

Points on Making Jelly.

In making jelly it sometimes happens that, after the usual signs of being done appear, the jelly, after cooling, will be quite thin. Setting it in the sun is slow and not always satisfactory. Having a batch which was quite thin when cold, I put the glasses in the warming oven of the range to await my convenience for cooking over, which process entails a shrinkage, as well as a change in color. Being delayed until the next day I found, to my surprise, that the jelly in the glasses was quite stiff. The heat had finished it without the extra labor.

During fruit time, when there is so much to be done, the juice from different fruits should be canned up for making jelly in winter. Prepare the juice as if for jelly, but use no sugar; when jelly is needed, open a jar of juice, or several jars of different kinds, and mix. Three-fourths of a cupful of sugar to a cupful of juice is sufficient for jelly made in winter, while one cupful of sugar to a cupful of juice is required if jelly is made in summer and expected to keep until spring.—"Household Information and Economics," in The Ladies' World for July.

There is one preparation known today that will promptly help the stomach. This is Kodol. Kodol digests all classes of food, and it does it thoroughly, so that the use of Kodol for a time will without doubt help anyone who has stomach disorders or stomach trouble. Take Kodol today and continue it for the short time that is necessary to give you complete relief. Kodol is sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Put Overalls On Baby.

To save baby's clothes when creeping put him in the little blue overalls, the 4-year-old size for 8-months baby. They go on nicely over clothes. In making a child's one-piece dress that blouses at the waist leave the lining separate from the waist except at the waist, and it can be laundered as easily as if it were not lined.

Hints to Housekeepers.

Apply flour wet with cold water to a burn.

A moderate amount of rope jumping is said to be very beneficial exercise.

Soap well applied to drawer slides will keep the drawers in furniture and closets from sticking.

Wring chamois out of soapy water without rinsing; when it dries it will be soft and serviceable instead of stiff.

To remove mildew, mix soft soap with powdered starch, two parts, and salt, one part, and the juice of a lemon to a paste. Spread it on both sides of the cloth and lay on the grass until stain disappears.

Wash all your combs twice a week in warm water in which has been dissolved one tablespoonful of borax to each quart of water. Rinse by holding them under the cold water faucet and allowing the water to run through with force.

New tin should not be used until it has been boiled with potash or ashes. Boil water in the vessel, with about a teaspoonful of potash, for 15 minutes; then rinse and boil clear water in it.

Grease stains on leather may be removed by carefully applying benzine or perfectly pure turpentine. Wash the spots over afterward with well beaten white of an egg or a good leather reviver.

Lemons which have become hard and shrunken owing to the cold weather or from being kept too long may be softened by laying them to soak for a few hours in cold water.

To keep the yolk of an egg from congealing it is a good plan to pour a little water over it before putting away. When this is poured off before making use of the yolk the latter will be found perfectly soft and fresh.

Don't hang a carpet on the line to beat; lay it on the grass. Beat with a bamboo carpet beater or a good stout rod until but little dust rises, then turn it over on a fresh spot and beat the other side.

A Fourth of July Game.

The new Fourth of July game of "abbreviated states" calls forth lively competition. A prize is given for the first correct list of the following questions:

What state reminds you of a great rainfall? Ark.

What state can be often multiplied? Tenn.

What state commences the domestic week? Wash.

What state is mightier than the sword? Penn.

What state is always sure of itself? Kan.

What state has a medical degree? Md.

What state is a chronic invalid? Ill.

What state is a maiden? Miss.

What state suggests a sheltered spot? Del.

What state is a woman's name? Minn.—Washington Star.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs.; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity may be benefited. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Popular Science Monthly.

The invitation to give thought to the conservation of resources that affect our future, appeals to me with almost personal force, for my studies of the past decade have led to the belief that the era of the earth's future habitability is vastly greater than we have been wont to think. We have grown up in the belief that the earth sprang from chaos at the opening of our era and is plunging on to catastrophe or to final winter in the near future. Quite at variance with this, I have come to believe that the earth arose from a regenerative process and that it offers a fair prospect of fitness for habitation for tens of millions of years to come. If this is true, it is eminently fit that our race should give a due measure of thought to the ulterior effects of its actions.—Professor T. C. Chamberlin in the July number of The Popular Science Monthly.

A Revelation.

It is a revelation to people, the severe cases of lung trouble that have been cured by Foley's Honey and Tar. It not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs. L. M. Ruggles, Reasnor, Iowa, writes: "The doctors said I had consumption, and I got no better until I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped the hemorrhages and pain in my lungs and they are now as sound as a bullet." Ed. D. Heckerman.

KIND WORDS.

Cultivate kindness of heart; think well of your fellowmen; look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives; do a good turn for them as opportunity offers; and finally, don't forget the kind word at the right time.

How much a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means to others, sometimes, and how little it costs us to give it.

We do not need to wait for some special occasion. When calamity overtakes a friend, words of sympathy and encouragement are offered sincerely enough, yet in certain respects, as a matter of course. Such an occasion calls for expression on our part, and we naturally respond. But why wait for an occasion? Why not speak the kind word when there is no special occasion?

In the course of our lives there must be many times when thoughtless words are spoken by us which wound the hearts of others. And there are also many little occasions when the word of cheer is needed from us, and we are silent.

There are lives of wearisome monotony which a word of kindness can relieve. There is suffering which words of sympathy can make more endurable. And often, even in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness.

Speak to those while they can hear and be helped by you, for the day may come when all our expressions of love and appreciation may be unheard. Imagine yourself standing beside their last resting place. Think of the things you could have said of them, and to them, while they were yet living. Then go and tell them now.—Luther League Review.

The Remedy That Does.

"Dr. King's New Discovery" is the remedy that does the healing others promise but fail to perform," says Mrs. E. R. Pierson, of Auburn Centre, Pa. "It is curing me of throat and lung trouble of long standing, that other treatments relieved only temporarily. New Discovery is doing me so much good that I feel confident its continued use for a reasonable length of time will restore me to perfect health." This renowned cough and cold remedy and throat and lung healer is sold at all Druggists. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Of Interest to Democrats

The National Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has begun active operations at its headquarters at Washington, D. C. In addition to its regular work, it is now preparing a Campaign hand-book which it hopes to have ready for distribution by July 1—two or three months earlier than heretofore.

The Committee is charged with the duty of assisting, in every way possible, the election of a Democratic Congress. We wish the active cooperation of every voter in the United States who believes, with us, that the election of a Democratic Congress would greatly benefit the country. We must rely upon the people to sustain our work by giving information as to local conditions, and suggestions for our guidance.

Each individual can at least aid us by making a contribution. Will he not do so and interest others in helping us, too?

We wish our Campaign hand-book distributed as generally as possible, and we will furnish a copy, as soon as published, to every one who contributes to our Committee.

Send remittances to me at Washington, D. C. James T. Lloyd, Chairman.

War Against Consumption.

All nations are endeavoring to check the ravages of consumption, the "white plague" that claims so many victims each year. Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs and colds perfectly and you are in no danger of consumption. Do not risk your health by taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain in results. E. D. Heckerman.

Warm Weather Suggestions.

A tepid bath morning and night is refreshing.

Heavy diet and especially a meat diet should be shunned.

All sorts of green vegetables should be taken in quantities.

Too much iced tea is injurious on account of its tannic acid.

A watercress or lettuce sandwich with a glass of milk makes a satisfactory lunch.

No violent exercise must be taken and the mind must be kept tranquil.

The girl who does not wish to become shallow, however, will get plenty of fresh air in her office.

She will also try to spend Sunday out of doors and to walk to work in the early morning.

Don't join in the chorus of the ladies who protest too much about the heat.

Don't use harsh physics. The reaction weakens the bowels, leads to chronic constipation. Get Doan's Reglets. They operate easily, tone the stomach, cure constipation,

BAR ASSOCIATION OFFICERS.

Attorney General Todd Now President of Body—Banquet Held Last Thursday.

The Pennsylvania Bar Association met at Cape May, N. J., last Thursday and elected the following officers: President, M. Hampton Todd attorney general of Pennsylvania; secretary, Judge William H. Staake, of Philadelphia; treasurer, Hon. William Penn Lloyd.

The president was given the power to select three delegates to the American Bar Association. The body requested the executive committee to have the next meeting at Cape May. A banquet was held in the evening, at which Governor Stuart, Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain, and William A. Glasgow were speakers.

Where the American Athlete Excels the English.

Although bigness and great strength are needed to throw the weights, scarcely less essential are cleverness and technique. Footwork, distribution of the weight of the body, these and other details only instinct, long practice and intelligently-directed effort can master. And here our undergraduates have had no difficulty in surpassing their English cousins. Whenever the two have met, the performances of the more casual Oxford and Cambridge men have been almost farical, and, indeed, men like Plaw, DeWitt, Beck, Sheldon and others have quite equalled the performance of all but the best of the older men of the athletic clubs. It is not, of course, any superiority in strength which has brought this about, merely painstaking thoroughness and care for "form." This is the same thing which has made them jump higher and run more gracefully—a characteristic thing—and one, therefore, that makes their success, so far as it goes, really American.—Arthur Ruhl in The Outing Magazine for July.

Bert Barber, of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

High Finance.

The excursion train was crowded, and the man in the center of the car knew it would be impossible to get out through the jam to get something to eat without losing his seat and perhaps missing his train. He looked longingly at the restaurant across the tracks, and, seeing an urchin sitting on the iron pipe near by, he called him over, saying, "Here, son, take this quarter and run over to that restaurant and get me a sandwich. And get yourself one," he called after the boy.

"You are easy," said the excursionist beside the man. "You'll never see that kid or your quarter again."

And as the train whistled at the moment he feared it would be true. Just then, however, the boy came running out of the restaurant with a large fat sandwich in his hand. The train was moving as he handed up the change and then, taking a huge mouthful of the sandwich, he called to the departing man with the hunger:

"They only had one left. Thanks!" —July Lippincott's.

Just Exactly Right.

"I have used Dr. King's New Life Pills for several years, and find them just exactly right," says Mr. A. A. Pelton, of Harrisville, N. Y. New Life Pills relieve without the least discomfort. Best remedy for constipation, biliousness and malaria. 25c. at all Druggists.

A Bath for Hot Days.

Have you ever tried a camphor bath? It is an excellent thing for the nerves. It is made from an ounce of tincture of camphor, half an ounce of tincture of benzoin and two ounces of toilet vinegar.

Bottle this mixture and add enough of it to a warm bath to scent the water. Do not stay in the tub longer than 10 or 15 minutes, and after the bath lie down for a half hour.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts gently upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system and at the same time it allays inflammation and stops irritation. Children like it. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

Your Teeth.

A woman whose teeth need treatment should consider money paid to a dentist as a good investment. Porcelain fillings have now been brought to such a state of perfection that for all front teeth they are decidedly better than gold. They show less and make the teeth look more natural.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is good for cuts, burns, bruises and scratches. It is especially good for piles. Recommended and sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

ACCIDENTS ON THE FOURTH.

How to Treat Injuries Among Celebrators.

So wide-spread have become the fatal accidents on Fourth of July that the Federal Government will endeavor to reduce the number of deaths. Surgeon-General Wyman, of the Marine Hospital and Public Health Service, has issued a circular giving instructions as to the treatment of Fourth of July injuries.

Dr. Wyman suggests the injuries be treated in this way:

"Incise freely every wound.

"Carefully and thoroughly remove from the wound every particle of foreign matter.

"Cauterize the wound thoroughly with twenty-five per cent carbolic acid.

"Apply loosely a wet pack of 2.5 per cent carbolic acid.

"Give a full dose of anti-tetanic serum."

The Technique of Home Making.

"Cook, sweep, dust and sew, these four words will never make a happy home," writes the editor in Woman's Home Companion for July. "They do not make sympathy, and love, and ambition, and faith; but they go a long way toward making room for these things. The average bride has a trunkful of ideals, and maybe two trunkfuls of clothes. Her cook book—if she has one and the leaves are cut at all—opens easily to 'fudge'. But unless she has mastered enough pages of this book to get three meals a day, without exhausting her own body and soul, and her husband's, too, she will have little time for clothes and none at all for ideals. She finds herself involved in the mastery of the merest technical details. In spite of her best endeavors, her husband loses his enthusiasm for badly cooked food poorly served. Perhaps, she tells him that he couldn't do it so well himself, and then he tells her about what he can do—perhaps it's soldering a joint or adding up a column of figures or drawing a straight line between two given points—but anyhow he can do it, because it's his business and he has perfected himself in it, and if she—And then Cook and Sweep and Dust and Sew fling wide the doors of that house, and Sympathy and Love and Ambition and Faith make their escape."

It Can't Be Beat.

The best of all teachers is experience. C. M. Harden, of Silver City, North Carolina, says: "I find Electric Bitters, does all that's claimed for it. For Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles it can't be beat. I have tried it and find it a most excellent medicine." Mr. Harden is right; it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back, and all run down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at all Druggists. 50c.

A HINT TO THE WISE.

The Democratic convention will meet soon at Denver, to nominate the candidate for President. With the Republican candidate already chosen, the campaign will shortly begin in earnest.

Naturally, until the curtain finally goes down in November, things will be humming politically; many interesting things will be done and said; and many interesting personalities will appear on the stage of Greater American Politics.

It behooves the unbiased newspaper reader, the spectator of this stirring political drama, regardless of his political faith, to have a complete view of the stage; a thing that "The Philadelphia Record" enables every reader to have.

"The Record" is a Democratic newspaper, and it speaks well for its independence and reliability that in a Republican stronghold it enjoys the confidence of a large Republican clientele, in addition to its thousands of Democratic subscribers.

Reasons for this are not far to seek. It is due to the excellent news service furnished in "The Record." This year the completeness and reliability of the campaign news will be fully up to the mark established in former presidential years and any regular reader can tell you what that means.

There may be some doubts as to the next choice for President, but there is no question at all that "The Daily and Sunday Record" receives the votes as Philadelphia's favorite newspaper.

Staking Tomatoes.

Early tomatoes can be staked or racks provided in the following manner: Take a hoop from a nail keg and tack it to two stakes which have been driven into the ground near the plant so the hoops will stand about eight inches from the ground and completely encircle the plant. As the plant grows draw the branches up over the hoop, and when it has reached its growth the hoop will support the vine so none of the fruit will lie on the ground.

Nail Beautifying.

Nothing is more disfiguring than a ragged appearance of the skin around the nails. To prevent this it is advisable to steep the nails for a few minutes every morning and night in warm olive oil, this treatment also aiding considerably in keeping the finger tips in good condition where they are apt to become seamed and rough after sewing or attending to small household duties. To remove the oil, before drying the hands a lather made of soap-jelly is useful, a capital idea being that of utilizing the odds and ends of toilet soap for this purpose, which usually represent a problem where the household is fairly numerous. If these are shredded down then can be dissolved and the resulting jelly bottled for use.

Rev. I. W. Williams Testifies.

Rev. I. W. Williams, Huntington, W. Va., testifies as follows: "This is to certify that I used Foley's Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney trouble, and am free to say that Foley's Kidney Remedy will do all that you claim for it." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Value of Good Looks.

A healthy skin, bright eyes, abundant and fine hair, white teeth, a symmetrical figure, with an upright, graceful carriage, and tasteful dress, go to make up an attractive personality, and are passports to favor and distinction which receive prompt recognition.

If added to these is a well-informed mind, a cheerful disposition, an unselfish and helpful spirit, the individual is a welcome addition to any crowd.

In the first place, it is impossible to look well without a good skin. The skin should be free from blotches and pimples and smooth and shiny like satin, and as soft as velvet. If one does not bathe properly the skin announces the fact.

There are general directions which apply to all cases of inquiry in regard to the skin. In the first place, the skin must be kept perfectly clean. Not only must all visible dirt be removed, but the microscopic as well.

Hives, eczema, itch or salt rheum set you crazy. Can't bear the touch of your clothing. Doan's Ointment cures the most obstinate cases. Why suffer. All druggists sell it.

Mottoes from Ruskin.

"It is not only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy; and the two cannot be separated with impunity."

"Try to get strength of heart to look yourself fairly in the face in mind as well as body. I do not doubt that the mind is a less pleasant thing to look at than the face, and for that very reason it needs more looking at; so always have two mirrors on your toilet table and see that with proper care you dress body and mind before them daily."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Borrowed money often causes a total loss of memory. A woman's idea of a miser is a man who refuses to pay her a compliment. When a woman is thoroughly tired she finds nothing quite so refreshing as a nice long talk. A woman never discovers just exactly what it is she wants until she finds that she can't get it. Retribution is that which we expect to overtake other people when they don't do as we expect they should. The girl with a diamond engagement ring will not be persuaded that marriage is as black as it is sometimes painted. Many a woman's head has been turned by flattery; but a new hat on another woman will make it turn more quickly.

Can't look well, eat well or feel well with impure blood feeding your body. Keep the blood pure with Burdock Blood Bitters. Eat simply, take exercise, keep clean and you will have long life.

Cooking Custard

What can be more appetizing than a properly made custard and what pudding affords such opportunity for variety in cooking? It can be baked, boiled, steamed plain, or combined with fruit or pastry, and may be made with a few eggs or many, according to the depth of the housekeeper's pocketbook. The preparation presents little difficulty, but the novice must guard against haste.

On no account may a custard be cooked quickly; a slow, steady heat is necessary, whether for baking or steaming. When ready it may be served hot or cold.

Washing Berries

Strawberries should never be washed unless they absolutely require it; then the best way is to put them in a colander and dip that two or three times into a large bowl of cold water; shake out the moisture as gently and thoroughly as possible, and stand the colander and berries near the ice. Do this some time before serving, and before stemming.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson I.—Third Quarter, For July 5, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. viii, 10-22. Memory Verses 19, 20—Golden Text, Prov. viii, 15—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

In turning back to the Old Testament for six months which remain of this year we are to learn of the same Israel and the same Lord of whom we have been reading in the gospel by John and very similar treatment of the Lord by Israel, for in all ages man is the same in his sin and the Lord is the same in His unchanging love and long suffering. Israel could say truly, and they will yet say again as never before, "The Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, the Lord is our King; He will save us" (Isa. xliii, 22). By His own great power He brought them out of the iron furnace of Egypt at the appointed time according to His word to Abraham. He bore with them and cared for them forty years in the wilderness and in due time placed them in the land of Canaan. Then He gave them judges for about 450 years until Samuel the prophet. Afterward they desired a king (Acts xiii, 17-21), that they might be like other nations (verses 7, 19, 20), and thus they rejected the Lord as their King and forsook Him, preferring not to be the Lord's own peculiar people. He had never dealt with any nation as He had with Israel. He bare them on eagle's wings and brought them unto Himself that they might be His peculiar treasure above all other people (I Sam. vii, 23, 24; Ex. xix, 4, 5), yet they wearied of Him and rebelled against Him and rejected Him. How like to the record in John 1, 11, and xix, 15, "He came unto His own, and His own received Him not." "The chief priests answered, We have no king but Caesar." The carnal mind ever since sin entered the world has been at enmity against God, always manifest in greater or less degree. Israel's sin at this time is reproduced in the great majority of professing Christians today. They are unwilling to be wholehearted for God, preferring conformity to this world, even though it means eternal and irreparable loss. Samuel felt hurt evidently that the elders of Israel should thus set him aside, or at least act on that line, but he did the wise thing, as was his wont—he told the Lord all about it. The Lord comforted him as Jesus did His disciples long afterward when He said: "The servant is not greater than his Lord. If they have persecuted Me, they will also persecute you" (John xv, 20). The Lord assured Samuel that He (Jehovah) was the rejected one and not Samuel. He authorized Samuel to tell Israel that He would give them a king, but he gave them fair warning, commissioning him to tell them what kind of a man he would be. So Samuel told all the words of the Lord unto the people (verse 10), just as he had told the words of the people unto the Lord.

In the former case he acted as prophet, the Lord's spokesman, and in the latter as priest representing the people before God. The people were warned that the king they desired would sorely oppress them and that they would be sorry they had asked for him (11-18). They were told that he would take about all that belonged to them. Notice six times in these verses just referred to, "He will take, he will take." Their sons and daughters and fields and grain and servants and flocks he would appropriate to himself. This they were plainly told, and yet they insisted that they would have a king so as to be like other nations. So it was written long afterward, "I gave thee a king in mine anger and took him away in My wrath" (Hos. xiii, 11). Does it not seem as if Jesus had this in mind when He said: "I am come in My Father's name and ye receive Me not. If another shall come in His own name, him ye will receive" (John v, 43). This other will be the antichrist spoken of in Dan. xi, 36, 45; II Thess. ii, 8-10. It would seem monstrous that men in any measure sane should choose a man—a mortal, selfish man—who would take everything they had from them, instead of the Living God, who gave them all things richly to enjoy. He gave them bread from heaven during forty years in the wilderness, and all the flesh they could eat, and water from the rock, and the land of Canaan with all its riches, as set forth in Deut. xi, 9-12, and His continual presence and constant care and His power and His wisdom. It would seem unbelievable that men would turn their backs upon such an Almighty Friend and choose a robber if we had not read that these same people in after years coolly and deliberately rejected Jesus of Nazareth, their Messiah, the Jehovah of the Old Testament, and chose a robber and murderer in His stead. Men are now persistently and deliberately and continually choosing the pleasures of sin for a season and refusing the kingdom of God, with its eternal weight of glory; choosing a murderer and destroyer and liar, who blinds their eyes to the light of the glorious gospel, rather than the Lord of life and glory, who gave Himself a sacrifice for our sins, even for the sins of the whole world. The things seen and temporal are more to the great majority than all the things unseen and eternal, and like Israel in the days of Samuel, they cry for something visible and tangible.

Men of faith, on the contrary, like those mentioned in Heb. xi, of whom Samuel is one, believe God.

WONDERFUL READERS.

Macaulay's Almost Superhuman Gift For Absorbing Literature.

Here is an interesting list of the volumes read by Lord Macaulay in a period of thirteen months, during which time he was also busied with his official duties as one of the members of the supreme council of India. "I have read Aeschylus twice," he writes a friend: "Sophocles twice, Euripides once, Pindar twice, Callimachus, Apollonius Rhodius, Quintus Calaber, Theocritus twice, Herodotus, Thucydides, almost all Xenophon's works, almost all Plato, Aristotle's 'Politics' and a good deal of his 'Organon', besides dipping elsewhere in him; the whole of 'Plutarch's Lives', about half of Lucian, two or three books of Athenaeus, Plautus twice, Terence twice, Lucretius twice, Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius, Lucan, Statius, Silius, Iliad, Livy, Velleius Paterculus, Sallust, Caesar and lastly Cicero. I have indeed a little Cicero left, but I shall finish him in a few days. I am now deep in Aristophanes and Lucian."

Manifestly Macaulay had an almost superhuman gift for reading. Trelvel said of him: "Macaulay's extraordinary faculty of assimilating printed matter at first sight remained the same through life. To the end he read books faster than other people skimmed them and skimmed them as fast as any one else would turn the leaves. And this speed was not in his case obtained at the expense of accuracy."

Balzac's ability to take in at a glance half a dozen or more lines of a page is a well known incident of literature, and the Frenchman got all the meanings and the shades of meaning from the page. Balzac was not a systematic reader and boasted that he never read a book through. But he, too, had the power of "assimilating printed matter." M. Brunetiere says that Balzac's capacity for absorbing knowledge as well as learning is not to be judged at all by the standards of ordinary men. The same principle incidentally is the sufficient answer to those who doubt that Shakespeare wrote Shakespeare because there is proof that he was never a student.

Doubtless these who have been mentioned were exceptional readers, or, rather, devourers of books. But their example is interesting not because it is exceptional, but for the reason that industry in reading is really not exceptional. The bibliographers attaching to meritorious works of history attest stupendous research—stupendous to the man who is content to merely "do" the magazines. The learned person who occasionally advises that a reading of Shakespeare and the Bible "is enough" has doubtless himself read wisely.

Even a cursory survey of the subject convinces that reading and its amount depend upon one's temperament and habit and has nothing whatever to do with time.—Kansas City Star.

THE CARE OF PALMS.

No Necessity For Drooping, Yellow or Falling Leaves.

Palms can be grown successfully in the house if one has knowledge as to their needs. There is really no necessity for the drooping, yellowing or falling leaves that are too often the result of home growing.

Grow them in a sunny window in a temperature that never falls below 50 degrees. They are less hurt by overheating than most foliage plants. Guard against sudden variations of heat and cold.

Give palms plenty of pot room, but not too much. Shifting to larger pots is usually only necessary about every two years.

A little fertilizer, say a teaspoonful of ammoniated bone meal mixed in a little tepid water and poured around the roots, may be given every two weeks. Others use successfully weak manure water diluted to the color of weak tea.

Never let water stand in the saucer beneath the pot, but keep on watering until a little shows through at the bottom. Then do not water again until little dry blotches begin to appear on the surface.

It is a mistake to use glazed jardinières, as palms need porous pots that let in the air to their roots. The ordinary red flowerpot is the best choice. See that it is kept clean on the outside.

Keep the fronds clean by sponging in tepid soapsuds at least once a week. Rust blotches generally mean too much watering. When they appear, let the pot dry out for a few days and cut out the rusty parts.

Red blotches mean red spider, and the leaves should at once be washed with very weak carbolic soapsuds. Persistent spraying of the undersides of the leaves with plain water will usually prevent these pests. They come from too dry an atmosphere.

Dried tips are another sign that the air of the living room is not moist enough for the palm. Clip off the tips and take palms to have more moisture in the room. A pan of water on the radiator is a corrective to dryness.

We Introduce "Alco System Clothes."

For young men 14 to 50 years of age.

The reference to young men 14 to 50 years is not used as a joke or a "catch phrase." A man is as young as he feels and our town has in it dozens of young fellows who have been celebrating birthdays for more than forty years. To these young men, and the young men under 40—under 30—and down to 14 years of age we want to show our new line of "ALCO" clothes.

The style's the thing and the wearing qualities are guaranteed by the makers and by us, so if you select a suit or an overcoat, or both, you can rest assured you have the "best ever" at the price.

Bees and Boys.

In many of the California apiaries boys are being employed almost together to take care of the bees. It is only in swarming time that other help is needed. After a little experience a boy can care for many hives and it is said that they are not stung as often as the men.

It has been figured up that a farmer's boy who is given five hives of bees to begin with, and who will work industriously, can make more money in ten years than his father can on a farm of 160 acres. Clover honey brings a good price, and the market is always short of it.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

STARTLING EXTRAVAGANCE.

The fiscal year has ended and the United States government is Sixty Millions of Dollars Behind. This is the third deficit during the seven years of Roosevelt's administration. In 1904 the deficit was $42,000,000; in 1905, $25,000,000 and now in 1908, $60,000,000. This is but $4,000,000 less than the shrinkage in government receipts during twelve months of general business depression and acute financial panic; but even this does not give a clear conception of the waste and extravagance. To fully comprehend the vast and in many instances useless expenditures of the Roosevelt administration we need make further comparisons. The expenditures of the year just passed exceed those of any year of our national history since 1865, not excepting the Spanish-American war period.

The expenditures for 1906, 1907 and 1908 added to the appropriation for 1909 reach the gigantic total of $3,428,809,371, which is $23,978,140 more than was expended during the four years of the Civil War. No bills carrying with them the expenditure of vast sums of money were vetoed by the Executive during the Roosevelt administration, and the President advocated the passage of many other bills which would have augmented the national outlay, which failed of passage by Congress. There has been nothing done to check the steady and alarming increase in national expenditures and a bad example stares the successor of Theodore Roosevelt in the face.

THE GREAT THOROUGHFARE.

The strong plea for the building of a state highway along the route of the old pike from Philadelphia to Pittsburg made by Governor Stuart before the Pennsylvania State Bar Association at Cape May is most commendable. The building of this great artery would be a lasting, permanent monument to the state and to the Legislature that authorizes it, and its full value to the people of the Commonwealth in general and particularly to those living along and in close proximity to the route cannot be measured in advance, though many advantages are evident. It would bring about a wonderful expansion of local traffic; it would make possible a trip from Philadelphia to Pittsburg between the rising and the setting of the sun; it would open up many local industries along the line, which cannot now exist because of remoteness from railroads

Hurrah for the Fourth of July!

"Let it rise! let it rise, till it meet the sun in his coming; let the earliest light of the morning gild it, and the parting day linger and play on its summit." From Daniel Webster's Address on Laying Cornerstone of Bunker Hill Monument.

and trolley lines or because of prohibitory rates of transportation; it would re-open old inns that flourished in the days of Conestogas and Concordes; it would invite tourists from other states and from other countries; it would increase land values and remove many of the present objectionable features from rural life; it would lighten the tax on farms which for road purposes is heavy because of the present condition of the highways; it would in time, be tapped by many laterals which would extend its usefulness. The route is not an experiment and will involve no costly engineering. Animal instinct first selected it, in many places, as the most advantageous in crossing elevations; later the Indian trails followed it and it was finally selected as the route by engineers for the pike. It became the great artery of commerce and remained such until the advent of railroads. Its being transformed now into a great, broad highway will result in so many benefits that every citizen of the great State should encourage the coming Legislature to authorize its making.

REUNION OF SELL FAMILY

To Be Held Saturday, August 15, at Roaring Spring.

The fourth annual reunion of the Sell family will be held at Roaring Spring on Saturday, August 15. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend, as it is expected that it will be the largest reunion yet held by the family.

The exercises will be held in the afternoon, beginning at 1:30, and will be presided over by D. Elmer Sell, president of the association. There will be three addresses: Rev. James A. Sell of Leamersville will speak on "The Past"; Simon H. Sell, Esq. of Bedford will speak on "The Present," and J. C. Sell of Altoona will talk on "The Future." There will be music and recitations by Misses Mary King, Jennie Baker and Pearl Sell. Miss Ida Baker is secretary of the association.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MENTIONED IN BRIEF

W. D. Sechler, formerly located here as district manager for the Bell Telephone Company, but now of Ebensburg, has been notified of his transfer to the Johnstown district, with headquarters in Johnstown, as district manager.

Dr. Clarence J. Albaugh of Kingman, Kan., who recently graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, left here on Tuesday after having spent several days with his uncle and aunt, Hon. and Mrs. Jacob H. Longenecker. Dr. Albaugh has been elected to a position in the West Penn Hospital at Pittsburg.

The commission appointed last week, as noted in The Gazette, to inquire into the sanity of James Barn-dollar of everett, declared him insane and on Friday he was taken to the asylum at Harrisburg. Barn-dollar acted strangely at Jeannette on Tuesday of last week and was brought here Wednesday evening. He was a glass blower and the excessive heat to which he was subjected is supposed to have produced the derangement which it is hoped is but temporary.

Walter Lee, son of John Lee of West John street, was injured in an accident at Fort Wayne, Ind., last week. Some time ago he won an automobile and, with a party of three friends, was enjoying an outing when he lost control of the machine and it ran into a pole, throwing out the occupants. Mr. Lee, who was driving, was the only one seriously injured; three fingers and a rib were broken and a wound made in his head which required over 25 stitches to close. He is recovering from his injuries.

LEO GILCHRIST ENTERTAINS.

A Pleasant Evening Spent by Forty Little Folks.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilchrist, West Pitt street, was the scene of much merry-making Wednesday evening when their second son, Leo, entertained forty of his little friends. The little folks enjoyed themselves in many ways, the feature of the evening's entertainment being a "Blackbird Pie," from which each little guest drew a gift. A photograph was taken of the group by Miss Anna Gates, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Those present were: Marian Clark, Elizabeth and Robert Madore, Ruth Steiner, William Snell, Margaret Naus, Austin and Colvin Wright, Dorothy and Geraldine Beemiller, Marian Davidson, Richard Beam, Catherine and Margaret Litzinger, Edward Hughes, Sarah Piper, Josephine Hoffman, Robert Gilchrist, Helen McLaughlin, Virginia Pate, Charles Davidson, Mary Gibson, Dale Smith, Elizabeth Thompson, Helen Enfield, Sarah Long, Richard Feight, Vernon Corle, Marie Wertz, Richard Donahoe, Marguerite Snyder, Dorothy Allen, Paul Powell, Edwin Barnett, Albert and Mary Louise Daschbach, Clarence Leo, Helen Corboy, Dorsey Line, Emory Barnhart, and Miss Etta V. Shires.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hershberger, who spent two weeks visiting friends at Pittsburg and vicinity, returned on Saturday to their home at Cessna.

Mrs. William M. Hall and three daughters, of Pittsburg, are paying a visit to Mrs. Hall's parents, Capt. and Mrs. A. I. Lyon, at this place.

Mrs. Samuel Gilchrist and little daughter Catherine, who were visiting relatives at Wheeling, W. Va., have returned to their home at this place.

Mr. Simon Feight, wife and baby, of Jeannette, arrived here on Wednesday for a visit to the former's brother, Mr. J. Howard Feight, and family.

Miss Reta and Mr. Carl Aughinbaugh, of the National House, spent Saturday and Sunday at Yellow Creek with their uncle, Mr. George Gorsuch.

Mr. J. B. Lobengier and family, of McKeesport, are sojourning at the home of Mrs. Lobengier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cessna, in South Bedford township.

Mrs. John R. Fisher returned last week from a visit in Fulton county. While there Mrs. Fisher sustained injuries by a fall, from which she is gradually recovering.

Miss Margaret Hartley, who holds the position of milliner in a large store in California, Pa., is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hartley.

Mrs. S. S. Claar and son James, who were visiting at Johnstown and Pittsburg, have returned to their home accompanied by Mrs. Claar's mother, Mrs. Eliza O'Shea of Sheraden.

Among Saturday's callers at the office were Messrs. John M. Rock of Ryot, Emanuel Claycomb of Osterburg, Charles Reighard of Bedford township, J. H. Colvin of Schellsburg and D. L. Rice of Flintstone, Md.

Mr. Aaron Zimmers of Belden recently spent several weeks visiting members of his family at Johnstown, Galtzintz and Pittsburg. His granddaughters, Virginia and Hazel Smith, of the first-named place, returned with him to spend the summer.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

The Road to Happiness.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Margaret, with her eyes on the heavy sky that hung over the stubble fields, sang softly:

"Falling leaf and fading tree, Lines of white on a sullen sea."

She stopped and turned to Meredith with an impulsive gesture.

"This is the end," she said.

His somber eyes met hers.

"I can't see it," he stormed. "We love each other. Why shouldn't we be happy?"

"Ah, but there is the other girl!" she reminded him.

"Yes, the other girl," he said, and for a long time after that they were silent.

In front of them stretched the long brown road. The goldenrod flamed on both sides of it now, but when these two had first met there had been sweet-brier and other delicate flowers of the early summer.

Margaret had worn a bunch of wild pink roses that first morning when she had come to the big gate to get her mail, and to Meredith, there on the same errand, she had seemed as fresh and perfect as the flowers she wore. Since then they had waited every morning on the old rustic bench under the oaks, and life in that time had taken on new meaning.

"Think of it," Margaret said at last—"tomorrow the little postman will come here and there will be no one to see him and nothing will be changed, but you and I will be far away—you in the west and I in the east."

After another silence he asked, "What are you going to do with your life?"

"I?" she hesitated. "Oh, go in for something, I suppose—settlement work or society or literature. Perhaps I'll write a novel."

"And you think that any of those things will make you happy?"

She stretched out her hands to him. "Ah, happiness"—she began, and her voice broke.

"Come with me," he whispered as he bent over her. "It must be you and I for all the future, Margaret."

She drew away from him. "No, no," she told him; "I shall get along. A woman can find so many interests in these days, and in using my brain I shall forget that I have a heart. And you—this summer, this little time that we have had together, will seem to you like a dream or a strain of music that heard once you can never forget."

His eyes followed her as she rose and walked to the gate. She wore a loose tan coat and tan shoes, and her brown hair was waved and puffed into a shining coiffure.

"Oh, you beauty," he whispered, "you beauty!"

"Hush!" she warned, and they heard the beat of a horse's hoofs.

The mail wagon of the rural delivery carrier was protected from sun and rain by a white umbrella, under which the little man sat like a frog under a toadstool.

"You all goin' tomorrow?" he asked as Meredith gave him directions for forwarding the mail. Then he gave a chuckling laugh. "I reckon if you all come next summer your mail will come to the same name."

Margaret had a half dozen letters and a paper. Meredith's mail was all business matter except one square white envelope addressed in delicate feminine script.

"Look here," the little postman said to Margaret facetiously as he handed the letter to Meredith; "I'd be jealous of that letter if I were you. He gets one every day."

A wave of scarlet swept over the girls' face. "Jealous!" she stammered. "Oh, no!"

But when the little man had gone she broke down and sobbed.

"I am jealous," she told Meredith. "I am dreadfully, dreadfully jealous."

"And yet you won't marry me."

"No."

"You want me to marry a woman I don't care for, to whom I am engaged simply because I had known her all my life and had drifted into it, and you want to make me miserable and to make her miserable just because you are afraid it will be dishonorable for me to go back on my word?"

"But she loves you, and she isn't strong."

His face softened.

"No; she isn't strong, and she has a sweet nature. If I had never met you I should have jogged along with her and there would have been no heights of happiness. I should have dwelt all ways in the plain."

He stopped abruptly. "But what is the use of thinking about that? It's our last day together, Margaret. Let us forget everything but that we are together."

"Then we'll ride," she said. "I'll go back to the house and get my habit, and we will go over the hills and far away."

He stuffed his letters into his pocket. "You haven't read—hers," Margaret reminded him.

"Another time," he said briefly, and they went to get ready.

Their ride that day was a thing to live in a man's memory. The hillsides were glowing in russet and orange and green. The lake as they passed it was as blue as a sapphire, and the blackbirds were flocking in the golden fields.

They talked little, but they lived in tensely in those few hours. Now and then she ventured a little plan for his future or for hers. But he would stop her always, and then he would urge their horses on and on until they went like the wind.

At last twilight came, and they stopped at a wayside inn for supper. They ate little.

"I can't," Margaret whispered when he insisted. "I am thinking of tomorrow."

When the waiter came with their bill Meredith, reaching for his pocketbook, brought out with it the unopened letter of the morning. As it lay on the table Margaret studied the postmark.

"How does it happen," she asked suddenly, "that she is in New York? I thought you were to meet her in Denver."

He caught the letter out of her hand. "New York?" he repeated and tore it open.

As he read his face changed, whitened and was suddenly illumined.

"Margaret," he said, with a quick intake of breath, "Margaret!"

"What is it?" she asked, startled.

"Helen is married—to some one she met this summer."

Across the table they stared at each other, stunned by this sudden fulfillment of their hearts' desire. Meredith, catching curious eyes upon them, rose.

"Come," he said abruptly; "we must go."

The stars were out as they mounted their horses, and the road lay like a silver path before them. In the darkness Meredith leaned over and drew to him the lady of his heart.

"Dear," he whispered tensely, "it is the road to happiness."

Check Your Passion.

An old man was once walking with a little boy. They came across four shrubs. The old man said to his youthful companion:

"Pull up the least one."

He obeyed with ease.

"Now the next."

He obeyed, but it did not come so easily.

"And the third."

It took all his strength to move its roots, but he succeeded.

"Now the fourth."

In vain the lad put forth all his strength. He only made the leaves tremble. He could not move the roots. They had gone strongly into the earth, and no effort could dislodge them.

Then the wise old man said to the ardent youth:

"This, my son, is just what happens with our passions. When they are young and weak one may by a little watchfulness over self and the help of a little self denial tear them up, but if we let them cast their roots deep into our souls there is no human power can uproot them. For this reason, my child, watch well over the first movements of your soul and study by acts of virtue to keep your passions well in check."

Reading in Bed.

Reading in bed, like most luxuries, can be overdone. In fact, there seems to be only one excuse for this fascinating way of ending the day. Certain people find that their worries accumulate in their brains after bedtime. Their nerves are at high tension, and their minds are actively at work trying to solve problems that should have been left behind in the city.

Going to bed with the brain in such a state means that with nothing to distract the thoughts, hearing nothing and seeing nothing in the darkness, imagination has full sway and hours of wakefulness may be the result. Such a man, we think, will find half an hour's reading in bed a great help.

With careful attention paid to the quality and position of the light so that without flickering it shines over the shoulder and directly on to the page the much maligned habit of reading in bed has sometimes a very beneficial effect on a tired and overwakeful brain.—Family Doctor.

A Considerate Bride.

"The most considerate girl I ever knew got married yesterday," said the man. "She showed her thoughtfulness in a most unusual way. The day before the wedding she called the attention of the rest of the family to a row of old shoes standing in a downstairs closet."

"I want you to throw these after the carriage," she said. "They are all mated. I collected them to throw away. I learned some time ago that certain poor souls who have hard work to get clothes of any description keep a lookout for big weddings. They hang around the house at going away time and pick up the good luck shoes. Maybe they get a fit, and maybe they don't. Anyway, I've done all I could to accommodate them."

"Here are six pairs of decent shoes to be fired after me. If somebody doesn't get fitted in that collection it isn't my fault."—New York Times.

Met Their Match.

Three students at one of the leading colleges determined to play a trick on one of the professors.

For a week they collected all kinds of bugs and finally had gathered a large number of them. Selecting a half dozen of the most uniformly sized, they took them apart; then they glued a leg of one, a head of another, a body of a third, etc., until they had a perfectly made body of a bug, and a very funny one.

Next day when the bug was dry they took it to the professor.

"We found it an hour ago," said the spokesman, "in the back field. It is very queer, and we thought you could tell us the name of it."

"So I can," said the professor after he had looked at it. "It is a species of humbug."—Philadelphia Ledger.

WATCH SPINAL COLUMN.

When Children Stoop Look Into the Matter at Once.

Do you keep sharp watch on the children's spinal columns and shoulders?

When there is any inclination to stooping shoulders, look into the matter at once to find the cause.

It may be the clothing in some way. The hose supporters will be put on the easiest way, and that is front and fastened to the underwaist.

This makes a pull on the chest and drags it over.

It takes only just a little more pull than on the back, and down drops the chest.

Are the bands around the waist weighing the muscles that are made to hold up the body, so they are not strong enough to work when so much is put on them?

The boy gives way under the drag of an ill fitting coat collar which is too thick.

See that there is no pull or weight on the back of the neck.

When nothing pulls the young spine over or presses it down and the proper muscles are allowed to hold it up the back will usually be straight and flat.

Want of pure air to fill the lungs and the drag of poorly arranged clothing have given many a child an incurable hump or a sunken chest for life.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

The secret of cooking game is constant basting. It should be underdone and full of gravy.

Pare potatoes and cover with cold water for an hour before cooking, and they will be less liable to turn dark after they are boiled.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to a quart of lamp oil will destroy the unpleasant odor if it is not caused by a burner in need of a thorough cleaning.

When boiling old potatoes, which are apt to go to a very dark color, put a tablespoonful of milk into the water in which they are boiled and you will find they will be beautifully white when cooked.

New walking shoes are sometimes inclined to "slip" at the heels, and a nasty blister is the result. A simple preventive is to rub the inside of the shoes with a little soap at the heel before putting them on.

A quick method of making bread-crumbs is to put the crumbs from a stale loaf into a muslin bag, tie at the top and rub it gently with both hands for a few minutes. The bread will then be fine enough for any purpose.

If you have a fern that does not grow fast enough, try putting the pot in hot water—not boiling, but too hot to bear the hand. This is especially good for the beautiful large fern that resembles the wild fern that grows on some shady hillside.

One often hears complaints that the boiler rusts and iron molds the clothes. To prevent this, as soon as the boiler is emptied rub well over with soap. This will not only prevent rust, it will also help to make suds for the next boiling.

To keep mice away from pantries and cupboards sprinkle cayenne pepper on the shelves. In boxes and wardrobes put lumps of camphor among the clothes, for mice dislike the smell of it. The camphor must be renewed every now and then, for it evaporates in the air.

An Astonishing Airship.

In these days of dirigible balloons, airships and aeroplanes the following account of an airship taken from the London Post for Dec. 22, 1709, is of interest:

"Father Bartholomew Laurent says that he has found out an invention by the help of which one may more speedily travel through the air than by other way, either by land or sea, so that one may go 200 miles in twenty-four hours."

The airship which was to accomplish this astonishing feat had at the top "sails wherewith the air is to be divided, which turn as they are directed." There was a rudder to direct the vessel's course, and the body was "formed at both ends scalloped. In the cavity of each is a pair of bellows, which must be blown when there is no wind."

Two loadstones, some large amber beads and various other items all had some mysterious part to play in this attempt to traverse the air.

This is perhaps the most extraordinary of all flying machines on record.

CORRESPONDENCE

Rainsburg

July 1—George W. Shearer, who suffered a stroke of paralysis several weeks ago, is again seen upon our streets.

The farmers living in the borough and vicinity report an unusually fine hay crop, and are now preparing for the grain harvest which promises to be in keeping with the hay.

Miss Rebecca Filler, after being bedfast for several weeks due to blood poisoning, is rapidly recovering from the dread disease.

Rev. Walter Shearer, after spending some time with his father, G. W. Shearer, has returned to his pastoral duties at New York.

William Beyers of the State Forestry Department reports the huckleberry crop on Martin Hill an unusually fine one.

Miss Alma Potts is at present on the sick list.

Miss Mary May of Milliken's Cove is visiting in the family of C. Edward Stuckey.

Quite a severe storm passed over this section of the county on Wednesday of last week. The storm was very heavy and the electrical display was lively for awhile. A tree in front of the residence of Harry Griffin was shattered, as were a number of trees near the borough. Some hail fell in this section, but there has been no material damage reported.

Simon Stuckey of Cumberland has arrived here for an indefinite stay.

Frank Shaeffer has increased the valuation of his property by the erection of a new summer kitchen.

Harold Smith of Pittsburgh is visiting his uncle, J. Douglass James.

Mrs. John Valtman of Ellerslie, Md., is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Harry Giffin.

John Perdew of Cumberland spent Sunday with his family, who are sojourning at the Cessna House.

Quite an elaborate reception was tendered Walter Reighard and his bride (nee Wise) upon their return from their wedding trip, which included Baltimore, Washington and Atlantic City. The reception was held last Saturday evening at the spacious home of the groom's father, David Reighard, north of the borough. The house was tastefully decorated with potted plants and wild flowers, while Japanese lanterns were hung throughout the yard. After the serving of many good things the fifty or more invited guests returned to their homes and considered the evening well spent. Among the out-of-town guests were the following: Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Wise, Miss Edna Neiss, Miss Esther and Nathan Wise of Cumberland; Mrs. Charles Lovenstein of Piedmont, W. Va.; Miss Mary Plack of Altoona, and Prof. H. H. Koontz of Cessna.

Mrs. Barbara Shoemaker, after suffering from rheumatism for several weeks, is again able to be out of doors.

Our groceryman, Benjamin Reighard, who accompanied his little son, Walter Randolph, to the Philadelphia Hospital where an operation was performed upon the latter, reports the operation as successful and expects to return to his home in about ten days.

Dr. H. Norton Porter and Rev. Charles Rupp enjoyed a tramp over Martin Hill on Tuesday.

The following formed a merry party which spent Monday on Reservoir Hill: Miss Edna Neiss and Miss Esther Wise, of Cumberland; Misses Gertrude and Ione Reighard, Louise Lessig and Margaret Lessig, Frank Reighard, Ralph Cessna, and Dr. Norton Porter, of Rainsburg.

Charles Filler, a resident of Rainsburg thirty years ago, now a dry goods merchant of Philadelphia, is visiting among his relatives and many friends.

Ralph Cessna, Clarence James, Dr. Chester Cessna, Norman Mower and Dr. Norton Porter journeyed on foot to the county capital on Tuesday.

Miss Nell Filler, a recent graduate in the college department of Juniata College, Huntingdon, has returned to her home for the summer vacation.

Chaneyville

June 30—The farmers are busy with their grain and hay harvest which promise to be good crops this year.

Russell McElfish and Georgie Deek, who have been attending school at Lock Haven, returned home last week. Mr. McElfish graduated from the State Normal with honors on June 24.

Ephraim Hook's barn was burned down yesterday. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been from children playing around the barn with matches.

Born—to Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon, a son.

The school board met on June 24 and elected the following teachers: Point Pleasant, Dora Means; Gordon, Gertrude Robinson; Prosperity, Lucretia McCoy; Browning, William B. Dicken; Pine Lick, Conda R. Kneeb; Mt. Zion, Jessa Means; Blue Gap, Edith Bennett; Stony Lick, Daisy Dicken; Collins, John James; Flintstone Creek, Henry May; Walnut Grove, David Fetters; Pleasant Valley, Bertha Bennett.

George and Mario Zamudio of Vera Cruz, Mexico, who have been attending the Model School at Lock Haven since December, are spending their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Eliza McElfish.

John O'Neal is treating his house and barn to new coats of paint.

Mrs. Eliza McElfish and son Palmer attended the Commencement exercises at Lock Haven last week.

The following Children's Day program was well rendered in the M. E. church last Sunday morning: Opening Song, Children's Welcome; Responsive Reading; Prayer; Song, Children's Day Welcome; Welcome Greeting, Gertrude Robinson; Soldier Boy, Grant Boor; You Cannot Count God's Blessings, Grace Wilson, Amanda Walters, Annie Lee, Nora Walters, Ethel Adams and Carrie Lee; Recitation, Nettie Wilson; Song, Gather Bright Gems for the Master; Recitations, Iva O'Neal, Lena Beck and Lida Swartzwelder; The Mission of the Flowers; Cornet Duet, Mamie and D. B. Cooper; How the Gospel was Brought to Jim Oaks, Prof. Roy Smith; Song, Carols of Gladness; Recitation, Stella Wertz; Ready to Leave, Stewart Pardew and Palmer McElfish; Song, Gleaning for Jesus; Recitation, Carrie Swartzwelder; Somebody's Mother, Della Swartzwelder; Through Another Year, Sanford Casteel, Oscar Swartzwelder, Marshal O'Neal and Russell Swartzwelder; Merry Song by Juniors; Recitation, Dell Kneeb; The Sunshine Band; I Belong to the King, Pearl Kneeb and Ada Swartzwelder; Recitations, Russell O'Neal and Grace Swartzwelder; Song, Crown This Children's Day; Recitation, Alice Mountain; The King's Heralds; Offering; Song, My Home Above.

Point

July 1—Mrs. Joseph P. Allen and two daughters returned to her home in Bedford on Friday.

David Feight and wife, of Davisville, are spending some time visiting in Friend's Cove and at Point, Fishertown and Schellsburg. Mr. Feight was for many years a blacksmith in Schellsburg and his lame as a horse-shoer was spread all over the State. He is now so badly crippled in his back that he walks just in the position in which he would be in shoeing a horse.

Oscar Conrad and family, of McKeesport, are guests of the family of Elias Snowberger at the present time. They came in their large automobile from their home.

Elias Snowberger, who went with Forrest Deaner to Philadelphia several weeks ago, returned to his home Saturday night and reports Mr. Deaner doing as well as can be expected after such an operation as he had to go through. Mr. Deaner expects to be home in ten days or two weeks.

Your correspondent and wife spent Sunday as the guests of their son, J. W. Hissong, at Fishertown.

Eli Grist was the first to cut grain in this community. He cut some and put it on shock last week.

The click of the mower is heard in all directions and the hay crop is good with the exception of a good many weeds in the grass.

J. E. Blackburn of Cessna was a Point visitor on Monday.

Nearly every place you go these fine mornings you find women and children out picking berries, and you hear complaints from every side of some one picking berries that were not their own. The farmers think that berry pickers should have manners enough to ask permission to go into their lands for berries or cherries.

Miss Myrtle Blackburn, who is living in Hyndman, was a home visitor for several days last week.

J. E. Fetter and family are now the guests of R. C. Smith, whom Mr. Fetter is helping to cut and make hay.

Mrs. Margery McCleary recently went to Hyndman to visit her son W. E. McCleary, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel.

Mrs. G. C. Claycomb of Openheimer and Mrs. Manford Beckley of Schellsburg were guests of the family of R. C. Smith on Tuesday.

Oliver Perdew is building an addition to his stable on his property near Spring Hope.

Hyndman

July 1—The ball game last Saturday between Centerville and the local team resulted in a victory for our nine.

Mrs. Bessie Dorn of Berlin spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Mullin.

Miss Nellie Henschke has returned from a visit at Ellerslie.

The brick works will again open up in a few days.

Garfield Brown and family, of Pittsburg, are visiting Joseph Kreigline and wife, Mrs. Brown's parents.

F. S. Cook is working on a lime kiln in Cumberland Valley this week.

Prof. and Mrs. U. Mellott, of Johnstown, are guests of the latter's parents, Michael Shaffer and wife.

Trains were delayed last Thursday because of a wreck on the B. & O. near here.

E. I. Foye and family and Mrs. William Reese were recent Garrett visitors.

Mrs. Levi Rizer, a resident of our town, fell on the boardwalk at her home recently and broke her arm.

Roy Attiather has gone to Pittsburg to take a course at a business college.

William F. Payne spent Sunday with his family at this place.

Mrs. Harvey Burket has returned to her home at Belington, W. Va., after a visit here.

J. V. and A. G. Crable and O. D. Blair are freshening their properties with paint, which adds to the appearance.

Miss Rosa Wetsh of Hazen, Md., is visiting in our town.

Walter Madore and wife spent Sunday at Dickens, Md.

KIMONO NIGHTGOWN.

UNDERCLOTHES of the one piece variety are increasing in popularity, and this is due to the fact that they are comfortable and easily made. If one desires a comfortable and practical nightgown, she cannot do better than copy the accompanying illustration. It is perfectly plain without trimming to become torn when it is laundered, and made with the flowing sleeves it is delightfully cool for summer. This style will certainly appeal to women who admire simple, neat undergarments. However, it can be made to express daintiness as well by the use of insertion to finish the neck and sleeves.

Many of the new nightgowns shown are of figured lawns and striped dimities. These are very pretty, and one can have variety by choosing different designs and colors. The striped dimities in all white are exceptionally attractive. The model would be pretty developed of this material with plain bands featherstitched on either edge with embroidery cotton.

A dainty and attractive nightgown was made of fine India linen after this model, and the sleeves and neck were finished with a buttonhole scallop in white embroidery cotton. This scallop also extended down the front, and a buttonhole and button were placed in every other scallop. This can be done at home at a very small cost, and when finished it has the appearance of a French made garment. The seams should be finished in French fells.

This nightgown is especially nice for traveling purposes, for when it is developed in a lawn with a pretty flower design and finished with plain white muslin bands it has much the appearance of a kimono. This one piece kimono nightgown slips on over the head and has either flowing or bishop sleeves. It is finished at the neck with a band much like a man's nightgown. The pattern is cut in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy this garment for the average person it requires 7½ yards of material 27 inches wide or 5 yards 36 inches wide. Any reader who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4190, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

TESTS IN THE DAIRY.

The best judges of stock will sometimes make mistakes when buying cows to add to their herds, but there is no excuse in these days of the milk scales and the Babcock tester for keeping a cow that does not leave a balance after paying for her feed and care.

Milk scales are not expensive, and it is very little trouble to weigh and record the amount of milk from each cow. It will take more time to add up the long columns, but an adding machine would pay for its cost in a short time. A Babcock tester can be bought for less than $10, and any man who can run a mowing machine ought to be able to test milk.

DEVICES FOR TESTING A DAIRY HERD.

It requires care to test milk accurately, but a man who is not equal to it has no business to be in charge of a dairy farm.

In some sections cow testing associations have been formed, and special agents do the testing, and much good work is being done along these lines by the New Hampshire Agricultural college. The dairy division of the college has taken much interest in the matter of encouraging farmers to test the product of their herds. For some time Professor Rasmussen has been sending out sample boxes to interested dairymen. The box carries fifteen sample bottles. These have the preservative already added, so all the farmer needs to do is take the samples according to directions and then return the box to the college. The sampling dipper is an ingenious device made by fastening a wire to a cartridge. Full directions accompany each box, so a farmer will be able to take samples accurately. The box is returned to the college and the samples carefully analyzed and report made back to the dairyman. Then if the farmer has kept account of the number of pounds of milk the animals gave he can figure out what his animals are doing.

Too Much Work to Know.

The Canadian Dairyman makes a good point in the following:

Ask a hundred farmers why they do not keep a record of their cows, and ninety-nine will tell you it is too much work. How they know, having never tried it, is a mystery. But they think so, at any rate. Too much work? They never tell you it is too much work to keep twenty cows to do the work of ten. They never tell you it is too much work to labor all summer to put up food for cows that cannot produce butter fat enough to pay for the food they eat. They see right into the work of keeping these records, but they cannot see these other things.

The time required for weighing and recording the milk has been estimated at one minute per day for each cow. The dairyman thus knows every day exactly what each cow is doing, and if a cow gets off her feed or is wrong in any way it will be detected in the shrinkage of her milk at once, when immediate attention can be given her and often fatal results avoided.

In summing up at the end of the year the dairyman will be surprised as he compares the records of the several cows in his herd. His milk record will be correct, and his milk tester will not deceive him, and he should promptly eliminate the unprofitable pauper boarders from his herd.

Weaning Pigs.

The weaning season is more or less critical with young swine. In many instances they receive a setback at that time, which means loss in growth. The manner of the weaning is important, as well as the time of the same. When young pigs have learned to take slop freely, made of shorts and skim milk, they are being made ready for weaning without a serious check to their growth. Such pigs may be weaned, if necessary, at the age of eight weeks. If they cannot be given skim milk, it is better for the pigs if they can remain longer on the dam. In such instances they will fare better if they can take nourishment from the dam until ten weeks old. In no case should they be weaned until they can take food freely apart from the dam. Much care should also be exercised to furnish them with that kind of food that will promote good growth.—Professor Shaw.

Using the Colts.

All colts and fillies should be haltered when quite young, and the custom is growing of teaching them to pull very light loads before they are two years old. The early spring is a good time to hitch them up with an old steady horse to a front bobsled with no load whatever and drive them around a little every day. Then when spring work comes on give the colt the long end of a three horse evener. Make the draft very light. Make the operation a schooling for the colt instead of trying to make it profitable for the owner. The profit will come in later years. The education a colt receives at this age, if carefully and kindly administered, is very valuable because it is done while the colt's habits are forming and before he learns vicious tricks.

FILLING THE SILO.

Cutting and Packing to Get the Best Results.

The cultivating of silage corn should be as thorough as for any corn crop, and it is safe to say the more thorough the cultivation the better the corn. Many mistakes have been made by planting a variety of corn which will not mature. The corn should be cut at the stage of maturity when it contains the largest percentage of digestible nutrients. This is when the kernels are well glazed and beyond the roasting stage, but not dead ripe. Then every portion of the plant is eaten and is not only palatable, but it contains a high coefficient of digestibility. Should the corn get too ripe or beyond this stage it should be well wetted down with water, and you will have good results.

I believe that the next day after the silo is filled the top should be wetted down, using as much as two or three gallons to the square foot of surface, writes J. P. Fletcher in Homestead. This settles the top and prevents it from drying out too much with the heat generated. The corn should be cut, if possible, one-fourth of an inch at the longest. The shorter it is the better and tighter it will pack. When you do not use a pipe down the silo, two men should be inside, so as to thoroughly distribute the ensilage, tramping and packing it tight around the edges and keeping the outside higher than the center. Be sure to get the ensilage thoroughly mixed, not letting the light stuff be by itself, as it will settle more than the other and leave air spaces. This should not be overlooked to get the best results. If your corn becomes too dry, be sure to wet it down well with water.

After your silo is filled, no matter how well it has been tramped down and settled in filling, it will settle unevenly, and unless it is leveled off and tramped well three or four times after it begins to settle there will be considerable loss of ensilage on top. By carefully leveling the silage every morning for three or four mornings after filling and tramping it thoroughly around the edges and with the wetting on top this loss will be reduced to a minimum. A stream of water as large as a lead pencil or larger should be constantly run on the blower or carrier. In this way fairly good ensilage can be made of corn that for one reason or other has become dry.

Rules For Swine Breeders.

Following are ten rules that should be followed by every intelligent swine breeder:

1. Breed from mature stock.
2. See that they have dry, clean sleeping quarters.
3. See that they are never overfed and no sudden changes made in their feed.
4. See that they have free access to pure water.
5. See that they have good shade during warm weather.
6. See that they are not obliged to eat their feed in filth or mud or in the dust.
7. Never feed an exclusive corn diet.
8. Do not inbreed.
9. See that their surroundings are kept clean. In warm weather dust fresh lime around any places that are apt to give off a stench.
10. Keep the following mixture in a dry place where they can help themselves the year round: One load of ashes, 100 pounds of salt, fifty pounds of sulphur, twenty pounds of copperas, one barrel of lime; mix thoroughly. In addition, feed charcoal and soft coal.

Stallion Needs Work.

The ability of the stallion to sire strong, vigorous colts depends very largely on his being thrifty. He should have good hard flesh and good powers of endurance. The facts are that the stallion should be worked at all times except during the breeding season. And even during that period he should have exercise enough to keep him eating heartily and without getting too fat. A stallion handled this way is almost sure of being a reliable foal getter, and his colts will be more hardy and vigorous than those from the pampered stallion. If a stallion is kept on the farm he should do his share of the work with the other horses. Do not be afraid to work him because of his high life and vicious traits. Usually idleness is responsible for his bad traits. Work him.

Care of Cream.

Aside from the scouring of cream, there are other things which enter into its care and which should be observed to insure cream of first quality. Cream rapidly takes up odors and for this reason should be kept in a pure atmosphere. Do not set cream in the kitchen, for it will absorb kitchen odors. A great deal of cream, otherwise first grade, tastes of fried onions and of fried ham and of tobacco, all of which things may have been used in the kitchen. Likewise do not place the cream can in the cellar where there are potatoes and cabbage and other vegetables. Keep the cream away from the barn, for the barn and cow odors are the most objectionable odors it is possible for cream to have.

Essentials In Good Butter.

I consider the essentials to producing fine dairy butter to be pure water, a temperature of 45 degrees, a centrifugal separator and emphatically uniform pains in every detail, says a dairyman. I pack in sixty pound, paper lined tubs and ship direct to a consumer who appreciates a fine grade of butter and is willing to pay for it. My usual output is 100 pounds a week. The quantity of butter color should vary with the season and the various feed used.

Farm and Garden

MANAGING POSTS.

Easy Methods of Putting Them In or Taking Them Out of the Ground.

One of the farmer's problems is how to look after the many posts which he has need of in keeping up fences, etc. While experiences differ, it is safe to say that white cedar poles last longer than any other kind. White oak posts are also good. It is said that posts put into the ground tops downward will outlast those that are set tops upward. This is due, so it is surmised, to the fact that they absorb water from the earth when they are set in the natural position, but do not absorb it when they are reversed.

If the end of a post is allowed to soak in liquid tar or is treated with creosote, it will last much longer than it would ordinarily. When it is necessary to draw a post out of the ground, it may be accomplished with little difficulty by the use of a team. A chain should be fastened about the stump, allowing a good length to the chain. The chain should be a stout one, especially if large posts which are firmly set are to be taken out. When stumps or posts are to be removed, spring is the best time to do the work, as the ground is then moist and the post comes out more easily. Sometimes when boundaries are to be moved, fields changed in outline or new fences erected a great many posts must be removed in a very short time, and unless some mechanical device were adopted for hastening the work it would take quite a long time.

HOMEMADE POST DRIVER.

Of the many post pullers now in use perhaps the one here shown is the most serviceable. It should be made of an old buggy axle or any other old piece of iron of about that size and used as shown. With this tool one man will pull more posts in a day than with any other tool the writer ever heard of, and two men with two of the tools can easily remove the largest telephone or telegraph poles.

Posts may be driven with speed and economy on many farms if well sharpened and the right method is followed. A real post driver is one of the most easily made things and one of the most useful that a farmer can get up. Uprights are bolted across to a sled, or a rough plank sled may be made.

The standards may be twelve or fifteen feet high. To them is bolted a crossbar which supports the hoist for the weight. For this a block of iron or lead weighing not less than twenty-five pounds must be obtained, and it must have a staple or ring in it so it may be lifted. The post is placed where it is to be driven and the weight lifted and allowed to fall on it. A little practice will enable one to drive posts in soil that seems too hard. The rig is useful also in putting down driven wells.

To drive a well an inch and a quarter pipe is preferred. The lengths should not be over six feet. The first pipe to be driven must have a point of iron or steel. Any blacksmith who is an expert at welding can readily make a point solid in the end of the pipe and then bore numerous quarter inch holes in it for the first eighteen inches of its length above the point. Before driving a coupling must be screwed down tight and fast on the thread that is to connect it to its mate, so the thread may not be injured; also on top of this coupling must always rest a block of lead or seasoned hickory to receive and distribute the concussion.

The pipe is driven the same as a post, another length being attached as fast as one is sunk in the ground. One rule must never be forgotten—each length of pipe must be threaded so long that it screws into the coupling and rests (butts, they call it) on the end of the pipe beneath it. This prevents splitting the coupling and leaky joints.

Do not throw away old fenceposts just because the ends in the ground have rotted away. You can patch these out and the posts will last as long as new ones. Take a piece of an ordinary post two feet long and smooth down one end with an ax so as to fit on to the end of the post, which should likewise be smoothed down. Now get a half dozen spikes and nail the piece to the post. Reverse the post, leaving the patched end at the top.

DOES VACATION PAY?

What a difference there is in what two people bring home from a vacation! One comes back tired, disgusted, bored. He has spent his money and doesn't feel that he has much of anything in return. Another comes back all radiant with the riches which he has drunk in and absorbed during every moment of his vacation. He comes back rejuvenated, refreshed, inspired, a new creature, with a new grip upon life. The cobweb, the brain ashes have been swept away from his jaded brain. He has been made over anew. Life means more than ever before. His dimmed ideals have been brightened and sharpened, his ambition renewed. Ask him if a vacation pays, and he will ask you, in turn, if it pays the grub to throw off its ugly shape and blossom out into a butterfly; if it pays a rosebud to open up its petals and fling out its fragrance and beauty to the world.

When you go into the country, make up your mind that you are going into God's great gallery of charm and beauty to enjoy yourself and to see what you can get out of it. Resolve that you will come home laden with riches that no money can buy; that you are going to extract from the landscape—from the mountains, the valleys, the fields, and the meadows—a wealth which does not inhere in the dollar.

Learn to drink in beauty and health at every pore. Try to realize that the flowers, the grass, the trees, the brooks, the hills—the charm and beauty everywhere—are God's smiles; that they are for him only who can appreciate them, who can respond to them, who can appropriate their message. They cannot be bought; they belong only to him who can enjoy them.—Success Magazine.

SCHOOL HYGIENE.

Why You Should Teach Your Children Jiu Jitsu.

One of the most interesting subjects brought up for discussion at the recent international congress on school hygiene was the question of including the teaching of jiu jitsu, or Japanese wrestling, as part of the regular school curriculum.

One thing about jiu jitsu is that it is graceful. The throws and falls are all done when expert with an ease and grace that are little short of marvelous. What is of more importance is the wonderfully beneficial effect it has upon the health of those little pupils who have already become proficient and who number small mites of five or six years.

One of the most potent results is the improved circulation of a child who has been through a course of training, the exercise invigorating all the organs and starting the circulation through brain and body. It permits of no danger of strain and can consequently be indulged in by the small devotee without any anxiety on the part of the school authorities.

In the case of an exceedingly delicate child the result has proved satisfactory beyond the most sanguine hopes, and the difference in the physique of the little pupil, who numbers eight or nine summers, seems hardly credible after a course of only three months' training.

A lesson in jiu jitsu lasts from twenty to thirty minutes, the movements representing the art of self defense or attack. Naturally enough, in the case of the small people it is necessary to teach the attitudes one by one till they become instinctive, the actual reasoning power which would direct when they should be turned to account requiring riper years.

The ankle trip, which consists in swinging the opponent's leg aside just at the psychological moment, when his weight is being shifted from the left foot to the right, and pulling him aside at the same time, is taught first, the children being wonderfully quick at picking up the theory and being given an opportunity of testing every movement on the teacher.

BUSINESS TRAINING.

Men Should Listen to Wife's Counsel In Business Affairs.

Governor Glenn of North Carolina writes:

"I advise every man who would be successful to listen to his wife's counsel in business affairs. The woman who is really a man's helpmeet is the one who is able to advise him on every serious problem that confronts him. But no woman can be a real companion who must spend all her time as cook and housekeeper. She ought to know about business and what is going on in the world. It is unreasonable of any man to expect his wife to meet his needs as a real companion if he does not provide the means for her to become so. A wife should have some leisure to study and develop herself along intellectual lines. A man who holds the opposite idea lowers the standard for wifehood and womanhood. And every girl and woman in the country should have a strict and thorough business education. No matter how fortunate a girl's immediate circumstances, she should be given a complete business training. Let them be trained to be first class stenographers, bank cashiers, professional nurses, bookkeepers—anything they have talent for. But let their equipment be complete, as a man's is. It is a dreadful mistake to leave a girl without any definite training whereby she may earn a livelihood in case of necessity. I believe the reason many women go into wrong paths in life is simply because they are helpless when thrown suddenly on their own resources."—Woman's Journal.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A pinch of salt taken before meals stimulates digestion.

A cup of strong coffee will remove the odor of onions from the breath.

Nervous spasms are usually relieved by dissolving a little salt in the mouth.

Bathing in salt water tones up the skin and gives it a fresh, wholesome color.

For corns take equal parts of lard and quinine and mix thoroughly. Apply at night.

For a sprained ankle the whites of eggs and powdered alum made into plaster is almost a specific.

Hot water is better than cold for bruises. It relieves pain quickly and will prevent discoloration.

One should be cautious about entering a sickroom in a state of perspiration, as the moment you become cool your pores absorb.

Stewed rhubarb has a well known medicinal value besides being a complexion beautifier. It is said to be valuable for rheumatic troubles.

Eggs are considered one of the best remedies for dysentery. Beaten up slightly and swallowed they tend to lessen the inflammation of stomach and intestines.

In even severe attacks of colic a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a teacupful of cold water has been known to give immediate relief. The same dose will revive a person who has been stunned by a heavy fall if he can be forced to swallow it.

A teaspoonful of ground mustard in a cupful of warm water is a prompt and reliable emetic and should be taken in cases of poisoning or cramps from overeating. Powdered resin is the best thing to stop bleeding from cuts.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good," and Doctor Pierce's medicine well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

A torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, palpitations, dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve it is unequalled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are over afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

Tired Eyes.

People speak about their eyes being tired, meaning that the retina, or seeing portion, of the eye is fatigued, but such is not the case, as the retina hardly ever gets tired. The fatigue is in the inner and outer muscle attached to the eyeball and the muscle of accommodation which surrounds the lens of the eye. When a near object is to be looked at this muscle relaxes and allows the lens to thicken, increasing its refractive power. The inner and outer muscles are used in covering the eye on the object to be looked at, the inner one being especially used when a near object is looked at. It is in the three muscles mentioned that the fatigue is felt, and relief is secured temporarily by closing the eyes or gazing at far distant objects. The usual indication of strain is a redness of the rim of the eyelid, betokening a congested state of the inner surface, accompanied with some pain. Sometimes this weariness indicates the need of glasses rightly adapted to the person, and in other cases the true remedy is to massage the eye and its surroundings as far as may be with the hand wet in cold water.

The Alternatives.

They had not been engaged very long, but already George had made it apparent that the salary of a junior shop assistant did not admit of an ecstatic existence amid a sea of diamond rings, theater stalls or even chocolate creams.

Recently they walked together to a neighboring village. The road was muddy, the wind bitter, and Daisy felt that life would be better worth living when she had an opportunity of reviving herself with tea and hot scones.

George hesitated outside the only restaurant in the place, and she smiled hopefully. His hand stole to his trousers pocket. He fumbled nervously there for a moment.

"Er—Daisy," he said at last, "will you have something to eat now and walk back, or shall we have nothing to eat and go back by train?"—Pearson's.

Hoity Toity.

Selden in his Table Talk writes: "In Queen Elizabeth's time gravity and state were kept up. In King James' time things were pretty well. But in King Charles' time there has been nothing but French-moré and the cushion dance, omnium gatherum, toity polly, hoity coitoite."

This phrase in modern French is haut comme toi!

The late Dr. Brewer, in his "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable," says:

"The most probable derivation I know is this: What we call 'seesaw' used to be called 'hoity toity'; hoity being connected with hoit (to leap up), our 'high,' 'height,' and toity being 'tother hoit'—i. e., first 'one side hoits,' then the other side."—London Notes and Queries.

THE DIVINING ROD.

No Mysterious Virtues Hidden In the Dowser's Wand.

In experiments with a divining rod as used for discovering underground supplies of water one of the geologists of the United States geological survey found that at points it turned downward independently of his will, but more complete tests showed that the down turning resulted from slight and—until watched for—unconscious changes in the inclination of his body, the effects of which were communicated through the arms and wrists to the rod. No movement of the rod from causes outside the body could be detected, and it soon became obvious that the view held by other men of science is correct, that the operation of the "divining rod" is generally due to unconscious movements of the body or of the muscles of the hand. The experiments made show that these movements happen most frequently at places where the operator's experience has led him to believe that water may be found.

The uselessness of the divining rod is indicated by the facts that the rod may be worked at will by the operator that he fails to detect strong currents of water running in tunnels and other channels that afford no surface indications of water and that his locations in limestone regions where water flows in well defined channels are rarely more successful than those dependent on mere guesses. In fact, its operators are successful only in regions in which ground water occurs in a definite sheet in porous material or in more or less clayey deposits, such as the pebbly clay or till, in which, although a few failures occur, wells would get water anywhere.

Ground water occurs under certain definite conditions, and as in humid regions a stream may be predicted wherever a valley is known, so one familiar with rocks and ground water conditions may predict places where ground water can be found. No appliance either electrical or mechanical has yet been successfully used for detecting water in places where plain common sense or mere guessing would not have shown its presence just as well. The only advantage of employing a "water witch," as the operator of the divining rod is sometimes called, is that skilled services are obtained, most men so employed being keener and better observers of the occurrence and movements of ground water than the average person.—Scientific American.

A Pet Bear.

Bears unless hungry or abused are good natured animals and make amusing pets. "When I was in the revenue service at Alaska," said a lieutenant, "we had a pet bear on the boat, and we called him Wineska. He used to climb to the crossbeams, going up hand over hand by the railings. One day he ventured out on the yardarm, and there he stayed. We had to get a rope and haul him down. Once he vaulted over the head of our Chinese cook and went into the lockers, where he helped himself to sugar and butter. We had a tackling made for him, much the same as a harness of a pet pug, and we would drop him overboard, with a rope attached, to take his bath. Once he landed in a native boat and nearly frightened the occupants out of their wits. He was as playful as a kitten, and, although he sometimes disobeyed, he was never treacherous or unkind. When he was lost or hid himself, as he often did, we would look in the dark till we saw two little balls of fire. These were his eyes and gave him away every time."

She Carried a Parcel.

The laugh is on one of the attendants at the Congressional Library at Washington. One of the rules is that no one shall be allowed to carry a parcel of any kind into the building. One day a tall young woman appeared at the door, and when the attendant saw that she had a parcel under her arm he told her that it was against the rules for her to take it with her. She demurred and pronounced the rule absurd. There were certain parcels that people should be allowed to carry with them, and so forth, and so forth. But the man insisted that he must enforce the rule and that she would have to leave the parcel with him until she came out. That settled it. The young woman deliberately opened the parcel, took from it three pairs of black stockings that she evidently had just bought, and, hanging them over her arm, she gave the attendant the paper in which they had been wrapped, saying: "There, please keep that until I come out. I have no parcel now."—Chicago News.

What Audiences Believe.

The light suddenly went out during one of my performances in Waterbury. A panic was in prospect. However, I shouted out: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am about to perform a most marvelous trick. I have here a lemon; but, of course, you can't see it. I am about to cut it in two and bring out of it an elephant!"

The audience settled down. Squash! I cut the lemon. "And now," I said, "the elephant has gone. It has walked off the stage. But, of course, you can't see it, but that doesn't matter."

Sure enough, there was heard a slow, shuffling sound quite appropriate, although it was made by the fat stage manager, who was shuffling across the boards in his slippers. The light returned, there was much applause, and all was well. The next day a man stopped me in the street and said he considered that trick the most marvelous he had ever seen and would I be giving it again that night! It's true!—Horace Goldin in Cassell's Magazine.

A GOOD CATCH!

Mail Service Men Successfully Handle Rod and Line.

This week was the scene of some of the best fishing done for a long time in this neck-o'-woods. The interested parties were Theodore Martin of Newark, N. J., clerk in charge
N. Y. and Pitts. R. P. O., and E. L.
Gates of Huntingdon, clerk in charge of Huntingdon-Cumberland R. P. O., both of whom are crack fishermen,
the former of the Catskill mountain streams and the latter of Western Pennsylvania waters. Upon their arrival at Cypher, they were met by S.
F. Piper, father-in-law of Mr. Gates, and were driven to his palatial country home behind his seven hundred dollar team of black horses, the pride not only of the owner, but of the entire community, and then to the fishing grounds among the hills and dales where the sportive trout abound and where the real sport was soon on in earnest with the following results: Monday, 71 trout ranging from eight to twelve inches in length; Tuesday, drove to the residence of J. E. Pike and from a stream nearby caught 48 more of the "spotties;" Wednesday Mr. Martin returned home and Postmaster Harry Evans of Hopewell took up the rod in his stead and with Mr. Gates' assistance landed 56, making in all 175; all guaranteed to be of legal dimensions. All parties were delighted with the trip and the success made and especially with the hospitality extended by Mr. Piper and family during the entire visit. Mr. Piper is one of the most progressive and up-to-date farmers in Central Pennsylvania and firmly believes in a liberal distribution of the good things he possesses with his fellowman. Mr.
Gates' wife and family were pleasantly domiciled at the home of Mr.
Piper and handled the rod and line successfully in the streams nearby, catching some two dozen trout for which the above-named fishermen claim no credit.

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVED

Last Sunday in Pleasant Valley Luth- eran Church.

St. James' Lutheran church in Bedford township was filled with spectators last Sunday to witness the exercises held by the Sunday school, Miss Lucy Dibert, in a very creditable manner, presided at the organ.
The following interesting program
was rendered:

Song by choir; Responsive Reading; Prayer by the pastor, Rev. J.
W. Lingle; Address of Welcome,
John C. Beegle; Song; Recitation,
Ada Dichtl; Solo, Della Bagley; Recitation, John Dively; Song by the Primary school; Recitations, Margaret Dibert, Bertha Stayer; Song; Exercise, six girls; Recitations, Cora Dibert, Avis Reingard; Song by Primary; Recitation, Annie Dilling;
Song; Recitation, Aler Koontz;
Song; Drill, 12 girls; Song; Address
by the pastor; Solo, Ada Dichtl; Song; Benediction. An offering for the Orphans' Home, amounting to $12.15, was lifted.

Geranium Cuttings.

For geranium cuttings, choose a stem that has bloomed. Pinch out the blossom and cut two-thirds through the branch that is to be used. Bend back a little, and leave four days to heal over, then break
all but a strip of bark on one side and leave two days more, when it will be dry enough to plant in moist soil, without danger of rotting as a fresh cut will sometimes do.—A. H.

THE CENSUS OF BEDFORD COUNTY, PENNSYLVAN- IA, IN 1772.

For many years I have been very anxious in regard to the safety of the first assessment lists of the taxable inhabitants of the county, made in 1772. They are very important and valuable, and in effect are a full enumeration or census of the entire taxable population (upwards of 1,800 in number), together with the amount of real and personal property (including slaves) owned by them respectively. The loss or destruction of these lists would be irreparable;
therefore, in order for their preservation, I have procured full and accurate copies of all these assessment lists, duly certified by the Commissioners of the county under their official seal, with a view to their publication in pamphlet form, and then depositing them with the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

The pamphlet will contain these certified lists, together with a summary of the organization of the County—the several Courts, and the names and boundaries of the sixteen townships erected at the first session of the proper Court, on April 16, 1771. Also the names of the officials of the County, the Courts and the Townships in 1771-1772.

Also the names, dates and boundaries of the several Counties, which were subsequently, wholly or partly, formed out of the said Townships, to-wit: Bedford (the mother county, which then included all Western Pennsylvania), Fulton, Huntingdon, Blair, Somerset, Cambria, Westmoreland, Fayette, Washington, Greene, Allegheny, Armstrong, Indiana,
Clearfield and Center.

It will also contain the names and dates of the erection of the several Counties, which were, wholly or partly, formed out of that portion of the Fort McIntosh Purchase by the State from the Six Nations in 1784, which was originally a part of Bedford
County, under the act of March 9, 1771, to wit: Allegheny, Beaver,
Butler, Lawrence, Mercer, Crawford, Eric (except the triangle, which was purchased from the United States
September 4, 1785), Warren, Mc-Kean, Venango, Forest, Clarion,
Armstrong, Indiana, Jefferson, Elk,
Clearfield and Center.

The above mentioned taxable lists will be of great interest and service to the descendants of the early settlers of the County, who now live in other Counties and States; and also to genealogists.

A limited number of the pamphlets (which will contain about 100 pages), will be published as soon as a sufficient number of subscribers have been obtained to justify its publication.

It will be mailed to subscribers for $1.00 per copy, postage paid. I prefer that no money be sent until subscribers are notified that the pamphlet will be published. And I desire to say that it will be published rather pro bono publico, than with a desire or expectation to realize a profit thereon.

TO BURN LIME.

Kilns to be Operated in Cumberland Valley.

A company of Cumberland Valley farmers, consisting of J. N., C. R.
and Daniel Drenning and George B.
F. A. and James A. Hemming, has in course of erection two lime kilns at the Strominger place in Cumberland Valley, four miles south of Bedford, which, when in operation will turn out 200 bushels per day.

The kilns, which will be modern in every particular and will be ready to be operated in about four weeks,
are being built by Wesley Sharp,
John Shoemaker and Fred Cook, of Hyndman. These kilns will supply a need long felt by the farmers in the fertile valley for the closest lime
at the present time is at Cumberland or in Snake Spring Valley. The company will burn for their own use and for the market, running the kilns continuously if necessary.

BARNETT'S STORE

A Penny-Weight of Performance is Worth a Ton of Weak-Kneed Promises.

Every day of the year this big store gladly fulfils its promises.
Has a bigger and better stock than can be found in any other place in the county. Can supply your or your home wants quickly and satisfactorily. Makes your money hold out longer. Gives more and better goods for a given sum. Performs all its promises without trying to wriggle out on small technicalities. What you see temptingly advertised is not only here, but here in abundance. The stock of everything sold is large—very large.

The big store accommodates the wants of the rich and the poor, and both come in for profit-sharing, because we always have and always will undersell other places where similar goods are sold. It's wasting time to dispute these claims; we have hundreds of pleased customers who gladly testify to the truth of our assertions. We have long since learned the wisdom and truth of the old saying: "An ounce of performance is worth a pound of broken promises." And so have you.

Why We Advertise Henderson Corsets

It does not pay us to advertise a poor thing

To urge, advise and recommend that you buy some
inferior article
hurts us, because
you will remember the injury we have done you—
because you have
a degree of confidence in us and
we cannot afford to push an unsatisfactory item.
This applies to
corsets with perhaps greater force
than with any other
article of wear.

And we advertise
Henderson Corsets because, while the profit is small, the satisfaction to the wearer is great, and second sales come without effort on our part.
Women know a good thing when they have tried it. This week we have a full stock of

Summer Curtain Materials

Light-weight fabrics, which make the house look cool in hot weather.

Just a hint of sash curtain materials:
Madras, 36 inches wide, 12½ to 15c a yard.
Fish net, 40 inches wide, 12½c a yard.
Point d'Esprit, 40 inches, 35c a yard. Hemstitched ruffled Swiss in white and ecru at 15, 25 and 35c a yard. Lace curtain goods by the yard, 10c to 35c. Denims for curtains, 18c, and striped linens for the making of furniture slip covers, 72 inches wide, 50c
a yard. Light tapestry for curtains 50, 65 and 75c a yard.

Paint

Don't put off painting—your property rots very soon when the paint is gone. We are selling the very highest grade made and at very special prices. Also Brushes, Turpentine and Linseed Oil.

WRINGERS, TUBS, ICE CREAM
FREEZERS, CEDAR PAILS, CHURNS,
BUTTER BOWLS, COFFEE MILLS,
SLAW CUTTERS, ETC.

We carry at all times a full stock of the above items in all the best makes and guarantee you a saving on each article. We sell the best Ice Cream Freezer we ever saw or ever heard of, and one gallon size will cost $2.50.

We have some new style Wash Wringers that we want you to see—some that have gum rollers and don't grind the buttons to pieces or tear your arms off—$1.25 and $1.75 to $3.

Dinner Sets

Of English porcelain decorated china in two colors, containing 100 pieces, and worth much more than we ask for them. They are not seconds, but the very best in this line, and our price of $9.98 puts them at the top
as early season's bargains in Chinaware.

Shirt Waists For Hot Weather

If you want to keep as cool as a cucumber, wear a white lawn waist. Women's waists of white lawn, front of hemstitched tucks, large white pearl buttons, $1.25.

Black Taffeta—36 inches wide, excellent for linings, splendid for coats and waists, guaranteed to wear, 98c a yard. Better grade at $1.25.

Black Japanese Silk—27 inches wide, lustrous black at 49c. Fine Black Peau de Soie—pure silk with soft finish 85c.

Ladies' Home Journal for July now on sale. If you don't have time to read it yourself, buy a copy for your family—only 15c.

Parasols and Sun Umbrellas

A few handsome and medium grade para-sols yet in stock and we are determined to sell them during the next two weeks. Our prices will be so very low on these goods, that unless you are well supplied, you can't resist buying—they must go at some figure.
Blue, Green, Black and Garnet Sun Umbrellas are very materially reduced for this sale.
Very pretty silk umbrellas with fancy handles—$1.50, were $2. Other handsome umbrellas at $4, $4.50 and $5.

Lap Robes

This time of the year finds us with too many Summer Robes on hand. If you need one you can supply yourself at a price far below what you were asked a month ago.
